Type	Workshop Systems and Community Based Responses for COVID 19
Presenting Authors	Robert Woollard & Farah
Country	Canada & United States of America
Abstract N°	TUFH541

Content

We welcome learners from diverse cultures and nations to share perspectives on gender, justice and indigenous forms of health promotion and disease prevention, related to these COVID-19 times.

Objectives:

1. To explore how has the experience of COVID-19 shaken up social, emotional and health-related relationships
2. To envision opportunities this time of change creates for a more balanced and healthier future.
3. To aspire to transformations of population health with greater participation of women and traditional healers
